Help create a more inclusive world

Global inequality is growing. Just a handful of people own half the world's wealth. At the same time, our global leaders are struggling for the answers to questions about how to achieve inclusive growth, create meaningful jobs, address climate change, invest in renewable energy, feed the world's growing population, give everyone access to clean drinking water, and to put an end to corrosive corruption.

If you work for a civil society group, organisation or institution, or if you are just passionate about these issues, you should attend the C20 Summit.

Hear from international civil society leaders from organisations like Transparency International, World Vision, World Wildlife Fund, Oxfam, UN Women, the Australian Council of Social Services, One International, faith organisations and academics, as they offer solutions to these difficult questions. Have your say and contribute to the discussions.

Never has there been a more important time for the world's leaders to hear from their citizens.

The Australian Government is chairing this year's G20 Summit - let's show our Government we have the answers.

When: 20 and 21 June, 2014

Where: Hosted by the University of Melbourne
